

ITALY THREATENS BREAK

WAR NOT YET WON, WARNS PADEREWSKI

“GERMANY, ALTHOUGH BEATEN IN WEST, IS MENACE IN EAST.”
ALLIES ARE URGED TO ACT AT ONCE

Premier of Poland Declares Huns Are Aiming to Reorganize Russia.
(By Associated Press)

Warsaw, March 21.—Germany, although defeated in the west, is not yet beaten in the east and if her aims in that part of Europe are to be frustrated, and there is to be peace there must be a strong Poland, Jan Ignace Paderewski, the premier of Poland declared yesterday.

In outlining the present situation of Poland and its relation to the whole European question, Premier Paderewski said: “The importance to the peace of Europe of a strong and united Poland cannot be exaggerated. Germany made war not for love and not for money, but for power. The war has not yet been won. Germany is ready to acknowledge herself beaten in the west, but not in the east.”

Aim to Revamp Russia
“The men who organized the present war for the purpose of revamping Russia in their own interests. If they do they will have an endless supply of labor and raw material. In addition to wheat, they will have cotton from the east, oil and great lumber supplies from the forests of Russia and immense coal and iron deposits, say nothing of the vast quantities of other minerals. With these reinforcements Germany would inevitably stamp her dominion on the whole world. Think of the effect on the splendid body of the American highly trained labor if Germany trained and directed the cheap labor of Russia and China. No one could compete with such cheap power. Germany is not France or England, which are so far off. Germany is at the gates of disorganized Russia. She is ready to take the place of the Russian empire. She will have the leisure to do in peace time, what she could not do in war time. A strong Poland alone can block the German advance. The Polish nation has been the task of Poland to protect civilization from the hordes of Asia. The Polish nation has been the task of Poland to protect civilization from the hordes of Asia. The Polish nation has been the task of Poland to protect civilization from the hordes of Asia.”

Must Have Danzig
“Danzig we must have, because without it our commerce would be cut off. Germany is at the gates of disorganized Russia. She is ready to take the place of the Russian empire. She will have the leisure to do in peace time, what she could not do in war time. A strong Poland alone can block the German advance. The Polish nation has been the task of Poland to protect civilization from the hordes of Asia. The Polish nation has been the task of Poland to protect civilization from the hordes of Asia. The Polish nation has been the task of Poland to protect civilization from the hordes of Asia.”

From Danzig to Posen the majority of the population is Polish. The country is a garden and it is for Germany to have it. The Polish people are industrious, somewhat slow, but good organizers. They will furnish constructive help for the development of Poland. It will be the center of our industry. It is a pity that the Czechoslovaks have attempted to deprive us of the Tag-chen region which is inhabited in great part by Poles. The Bohemians do not need the coal there because they have many thousands of miles of coal in their own country. I hope the congress in Paris will not deprive us of this region. It might have disastrous effects.

In eastern Galicia the majority of the inhabitants are Ruthenians. The distinction between them and the Poles is not racial, but only religious and linguistic. The Ruthenians belong to the Greek church which recognizes the authority of Rome. When a Polish woman marries a Ruthenian the girls are classed as Poles and the boys become Ruthenians and vice versa. Thus in the same family you will find Ruthenians and Poles speaking the languages of both countries and with the religious distinction. The Polish peasants in eastern Galicia are enthusiastic over their newly found national unity, freedom and independence.

This patriotism is rooted deeply in the Polish people and will cement our nation in a strong barrier against the incorporation of the one hand and Bolshevism on the other. If we receive from the peace conference those districts which will give us national independence, I hope that the American people will help us to attain this end.”

Hold Rhine Warns Foch

Paris, March 21.—“The Rhine is our only good line of defense. I do not demand annexation, but if we do not secure that military frontier we will have fought in vain; it is a statement made by Marshal Foch, in an interview in the Matin today.
Discussing the last days of the war the marshal said: “It was the wonderful soldiers who gave us victory. My only merit was to have had faith and never to have despaired. We signed the armistice in spite of the certainty of crushing the German armies, to avoid killing even one more man and because it gave us everything necessary to a French victory.”

HUN SEAMEN REVOLT; REFUSE TO DELIVER VESSELS TO ENTENTE

Budapest, March 21.—Ten German submarines which are to be delivered to the entente powers have left Hamburg, according to a dispatch received here.

Berlin, (via Copenhagen), March 21.—Two German steamers scheduled to sail on March 15, in accordance with the inter-allied food commission agreement have been prevented from leaving Hamburg owing to a resolution passed by seamen, refusing to operate ships demanded by the entente nations.

Newspapers protest and say the resolution represents the will of a “small communist section.”
The Hamburg section of the transport workers union has lodged a protest against the action of the seamen.

Seamen Adopt Resolution
Hamburg, March 21.—A mass meeting of seamen today passed the following resolution: “Today’s mass meeting of seamen refuses to participate in the delivery of German merchant ships demanded by the entente and declares it to be the duty of all seamen and laborers to refuse to carry out work on those ships.”
The resolution was passed with a ground that there is no guarantee that any money would receive any food except the initial delivery.

‘DIME NOVEL’ HEROSCORN MERE PRISON

4 WIVES IN 3 YEARS ONLY INCIDENT IN HIS SPEEDY CAREER.
CAN’T REMEMBER SO MANY ALIASES

Charles Bradford Will Have 18 Months in Cell to Write His Story.

Four wives in three years and a career of crime—boasted of in his own “first person story”—were nothing in the sensational-ly versatile life of Charles Bradford, of innumerable aliases, whose biography extends into foreign countries and has Jesse James and Nick Carter gasping for breath.

But such a trifling, petty offense as the theft of an automobile will give Bradford 18 months to write his story in seclusion at the state penitentiary at Waupun.

Sheriff Fred Bailey said today that the dime novel hero will be taken to a cell Monday.

“Dime Novel” Hero.
Bradford says it would require a week to write his biography. He is familiar with the interiors of jails and prisons in two countries. He has led a “dime novel” life.

He was born in Nellville, Wis. Left an orphan when six years old, he was sent to the orphan’s home at Sparta, where he remained until he was 19 years of age. Leaving that institution he struck out for the east, landing in New York where he worked on farms for some time.

He began his roving career after a short stay in New York visiting several large cities in the country and the adjoining coast Canada. He made $2,500 by forging checks in St. Paul and it was over a year before he was apprehended in Indianapolis, taken to St. Paul and sentenced to 10 years in the state prison at Stillwater. He was given his freedom on good behavior after serving 18 months of his term.

4 Wives in 3 Years.
Previous to his St. Paul foray he was arrested in Canada for having four wives and served 18 months for bigamy. He married all four women in less than three years.

In the Minnesota state prison he says he learned more than he ever knew before. It was there he learned the art of auto stealing, which he practiced successfully after his release. He stole cars in a number of cities and was finally selling his last car in St. Paul.

He was nabbed in Denver and served 90 days in the county jail there for getting away with a touring car.

While watching a ball game in the prison at Stillwater he saw a “dip” cleverly “lift” a watch from one of the deputy wardens while talking to him. The crafty pickpocket returned the watch and was later much to the warden’s surprise.

Bradford says after he has served his time at Waupun they are never going to get him again. He would like to go to the coast to continue his thievery or go straight in the future.

BELGIAN RULERS PAY VISIT TO PERSHING

Chaumont, France, (Thursday), March 20. (Delayed).—King Albert and Queen Elizabeth of Belgium arrived here last night for a visit to General Pershing.

The royal pair made the trip by motor car, the weather being unfavorable for the journey by airplane they had contemplated. The king and queen were accompanied by Colonel Tikhon, aide de camp to the court, a second Belgian officer, and Countess Decarmen-Chemay, lady in waiting to the queen. They were met at the great entrance of the chateau by General Pershing and his personal staff, dined quietly and passed the night in the chateau.

Snow fell heavily throughout the hills of the upper Marne all last night, but this did not interfere with the reception given the Belgian royals today at the Chaumont city hall. The city was decorated and the streets were crowded with visitors from near by towns, including many American troops from neighboring cantonments.

Fifty high school boys and girls will be stationed throughout the business district armed with pink tags bearing the slogan, “Vote for Concrete Roads, Apr. 1 and Stop Wastes.” These tags will be sold to pedestrians for any amount they may care to contribute to the campaign to pass the bond issue at the April election.

“A Dollar a Car and We’ll Ride on Concrete” is the inscription on the stickers which will be sold to automobile owners. Every car will be stopped and the driver asked to buy a tag.

The tag day is being staged by the Chamber of Commerce to raise Janesville’s share of the campaign expenses. Mrs. H. A. Ford will have charge of the collectors.

The boys and girls will meet at the Chamber of Commerce at nine o’clock tomorrow morning to receive their instructions. They will be asked to go out to everyone to buy a tag. The drive will continue throughout the day. A free lunch to all workers will be served at noon.

CRUSHED BY TREE FELLED ON HILLSIDE

(By Special Correspondent.)
Richmond, March 21.—Andrew Peterson, an old resident of Richmond, while felling trees in the woods near his home last evening was killed when a tree which he had cut down rolled down the side of a hill crushing him underneath it. Mr. Peterson had been working in the woods all day and had gone back early in the evening to finish up. His wife became alarmed when he did not return and went in search of him, finding the dead body pinned beneath the trunk of a tree.

He was 61 years old. He is survived by his wife; one daughter, Mrs. Paul Klug, Richmond; one sister, Mrs. Sarah Winston, Delmar; two brothers, Ole Peterson, White water, and John Peterson, who lives in Dakota. U. S. AGENTS UNEARTH MANY TAX FRAUDS

Washington, March 21.—Fraud or misrepresentation by private income tax advisors in many cities has been reported by revenue officers, it was learned today and investigations are to be made by United States attorneys. Prosecutions are probable in a number of cases.

Private tax advisors reaped a harvest last week, according to the reports, during the rush of citizens to file their income returns. The advisors opened offices and by advertising drew thousands of people to them. Revenue officials charge that many of them were guilty of illegal practices in aiding taxpayers in making out false or misleading returns. Officials explained that the criticism did not refer to banks and reputable business institutions which gave great aid to the revenue authorities.

PEACE CHIEFS UNABLE TO AGREE ON POSEN

Paris, March 21.—A semi-official German note explaining the reason for breaking off negotiations at Posen says it has been impossible to reach an agreement, especially regarding the presidency of the commission controlling the situation.

The Germans say they are considering the appointment of the president by Pope Benedict, while the entente nations desire the permanent international arbitration commission to name the presiding officer.

The supreme council will consider the Posen situation today and will take up measures to be carried out against the Germans to bring about a cessation of hostilities in the province of Poland.

WILL QUIT PEACE MEET UNLESS AWARDED LAND ALONG ADRIATIC; JUGO-SLAV SNARL AT NEW CRISIS

TWO FAMILIES MADE HOMELESS BY FIRES TODAY

Two families were made homeless today as the result of fires which completely destroyed the homes of James Cheesman, 327 S. Mary’s avenue, and Art Stone, 111 S. South Cherry street. In both cases the buildings were burned to the ground and the Cheesman family are left in destitute circumstances from the disaster.

Shortly after five o’clock this morning the department responded to a still alarm on Milton avenue which was meant for St. Mary’s avenue but misinterpreted by the sender. While the largest roof was out the alarm was sounded calling them to box 26 located at the corner of Glen and Hickory streets, about a quarter of a mile from the Cheesman home.

Owing to the theft of the key from box 261 located at the corner of Hickory and St. Mary’s avenue the sender was required to run a considerable distance to sound the alarm. The department arrived at the Cheesman home the entire roof was in flames in a short time, despite the heroic efforts of the firemen, the small frame building was completely destroyed.

All efforts to save the home of any of the contents proved futile.

The house is owned by the Tierney estate and was insured for $200. The fire broke out at about 12 o’clock the department was called to the home of Art Stone, 113 S. South Cherry street where a chimney fire had developed into a full-blown fire.

It was necessary to haul the large steam engine to the scene and get the water from an adjoining well.

The flames spread rapidly to the lower part of the house and every effort of the firemen to save the building from destruction proved to be futile. The flames were aided by a strong wind and within a few minutes after the arrival of the department the house was completely enveloped in flames.

Chief Murphy and his men worked quickly to save the building and several loads of hose were brought into play but to no avail. The house was completely destroyed but several pieces of furniture were rescued from the burning.

According to a statement of C. Krause who owns the property the house was insured for $1000.

Practically everything in the home was destroyed. The Associated Charities through its secretary Rev. Henry Willmann made an appeal this afternoon for clothing for the entire family. James Cheesman, the father, employed nights at the Janesville Products company. Clothing for a 3-year-old girl, Helen Isabel, and for a 9-month-old child, John, were also needed. The Salvation Army has contributed a bed, two chairs have been given to the family, a freemantle, a bed, a mattress and a bed, and a bed, and a mattress by the Associated Charities. Sheets, blankets, and quilts are greatly needed.

The family will live at 121 Elliott street in Spring Brook in the future and contributions of clothing and furniture may be sent there.

Maximilian Will Reply to Hindenburg Criticism

Berlin, Wednesday, March 20. (Delayed).—In Field Marshal von Hindenburg’s statement justifying the flight of former emperor William there was a sharp criticism of Prince Maximilian of Baden, the then chancellor, for publishing the facts of the emperor’s abdication without the latter’s assent.

It is expected that this will evoke a sharp rejoinder from friends of the ex-emperor who are already pointing out that the emperor’s abdication was a fact and not a fiction.

Mr. Jones dropped over dead in the bank Wednesday. He has made his home here with his daughter since the death of his wife. His former home was in Waukesha.

What’s Doing at Peace Meetings

ITALY’S ULTIMATUM—The controversy that has ensued for more than a week at the peace conference between Italy and the Jugo-Slavs reached a crisis today when Italy officially served an ultimatum upon the delegates that unless she were awarded lands along the Adriatic she would withdraw entirely from further participation in the conference.

The Italian decision was reached at a meeting today of the full delegation presided over by Premier Orlando. It was immediately communicated to the powers.

HOUSE PROMISES ACTION—Col. E. M. House of the American delegation promised Premier Orlando to present within a few days a project concerning the Italian Jugo-Slav frontier.

SECRETARY OF WAR ACCUSED OF AIDING I. W. W. PROPAGANDA

(By Associated Press.)
Kansas City, Mo., March 21.—Secretary of War Baker was accused directly of “aiding and assisting the I. W. W., international socialists, and humanitarians in their program of blocking the construction of the army” by Major Dick B. Foster, member of the general court martial which tried 135 alleged conscientious objectors at Camp Funston in an address before the city club here today.

“This was done,” Major Foster said, “by extending and perverting the acts of congress for the protection, comfort and solace of these obstructionists.”

GERMAN PEACE ENVOY ATTACKS WILSON PLAN

Berne, March 21.—Prof. Walther Schuecking, a member of the German peace delegation, declares in an interview, that he does not believe President Wilson’s program can be invoked to deprive Germany of all her colonies.

Mr. Wilson has promised a broad, generous settlement to peoples like the Germans,” he says. “Civilization rests on the efforts of all the great nations. It is to the league of nations, Germany is sincerely desirous of collaborating in the organization and I hope the Paris conference may be sensibly modified.

Senator Pullen’s Bill Strikes No Opposition

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, March 21.—There was no opposition Thursday afternoon at the hearing of Senator Albert J. Pullen’s bill authorizing the commissioner of agriculture to appoint a state humane agent to superintend and assist in the organization of county humane societies. The bill provides an annual appropriation of $5,000 for the expenses of the department.

Mr. Pullen, who is president of the Fond du Lac county Humane society, declared the passage of the bill would mean that the first collected would not treble the amount of the appropriation the first year. He said only 16 of the 71 counties now have humane societies and that there is room for a great deal of missionary work.

Food Imports Cut Off.
There have been several “incidents” at Fiume and other points in the territory claimed by both Italy and Jugo-Slavia since the signing of the armistice, and the feud at one time grew so bitter that Italy established a blockade and cut off food supplies for the interior. This matter was adjudged by the supreme council in Paris, however, and the reports of late have indicated that an amicable settlement of the conflicting Italian-Jugo-Slav claims was possible, if not probable.

Just what has caused the Italian delegation to announce its determination on the Fiume question at this time has not been developed in Paris advices. It is known, however, that the question of territorial adjustments has been before the conferences of premieres, which have been taking place during the last two or three weeks.

Associated Press dispatch received last night from Paris regarding a conference held yesterday between President Wilson and Premier Clemenceau and Lloyd George states that there was every reason to believe that the frontiers issues were among the foremost obstacles which the conference were seeking to remove from the path to a rapid conclusion of the peace treaty.

Fiume, before the war was the chief seaport of the Hungarian kingdom. It has several harbors and its position and facilities made it the seat of virtually the entire shipping trade of Hungary. It had an ante bellum population of nearly 40,000.

German-Austria Demands Up London, March 21.—German-Austria, according to advices received here, quoting Berlin newspapers, has expressed a desire for independence and representation at the peace conference. It desires also, the reports from Vienna add, that the question of its union with Germany be postponed until the conclusion of the conference.

Gee, just hear the Cornetist! He is a Windy Cuss and can make Sounds such as were never heard on Land or Sea. And when he plays “The End of a Perfect Day,” the Milk Curies out in the Kitchen, the Neighbors leave for Down Town and all the Dawgs start to mady Running in Circles.

SERIOUS HITCH IS SEEN BY THE INTERNATIONAL DELEGATES.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS MAY BE HELD UP

Fiume, Chief Seaport of Hungarian Kingdom, is the Chief Issue.
(By Associated Press)

Paris, March 21.—The Italian delegation to the peace conference has unanimously decided to withdraw from the conference unless Fiume is assigned to Italy contemporaneously with the conclusion of peace.

The decision was reached at a meeting today of the full delegation presided over by Premier Orlando. It was immediately communicated to the powers.

Col. E. M. House of the American mission promised Premier Orlando to present within a few days a project concerning the Italian-Jugo-Slav frontier which he hopes will satisfactorily settle the dispute.

Butter Flight at Crisis.
The decision of the Italian delegation brings to a head the bitter controversy between Italy and the new Jugo-Slav state over the disposition of land along the Adriatic formerly belonging to the Austro-Hungarian empire, which both nationalities claim.

Italy’s claims originally included virtually the entire Dalmatian coast, with Trieste and Fiume, which latter city is the second principal seaport on the eastern side of the Adriatic. Recent reports have been that the Italian representatives present manifesting a disposition to make important concessions regarding the land along the Dalmatian coast, provided that the city and harbor of Fiume remained to Italy.

Jugo-Slavs Insistent.
The Jugo-Slavs, however, have been insistent that this port be allotted to them, claiming it to be essentially a Croatian city and necessary to the Jugo-Slav state as affording the only feasible, suitable sea outlet for her commerce.

On the other hand, there has been no dispute as to the right to yield her point so far as Fiume is concerned. Her attitude was officially stated by Premier Orlando in addressing the Italian chamber of deputies last night, when he declared that while Italy remained “faithful to the spirit of conciliation which inspired the treaty upon which Italy entered the war,” that did not mean that she would not stand firm in her position regarding her from the Italian town on the Gulf of Quarnero (Fiume), which was “exposed to the loss of both its nationality and independence.”

ELKS AID RETURNING DISABLED SOLDIERS

Washington, March 21.—Disabled soldiers, sailors and marines who are hard to be worthy cases, but which for one technicality or another have been declared "non-compensable cases" by the Bureau of War Risk Insurance now have a chance for redress, according to a statement today by the Federal Board for Vocational Education, which has charge of this work.

According to the law passed by congress, only the cases decided as "compensable" by the War Risk Insurance bureau are eligible or entitled to the free vocational training with $65 per month support fund, allowance for dependents, and placement in a job, if the course be for a wage earning occupation.

By means of the fund of $150,000 placed by the Elks at the disposal of the Federal board, worthy cases can now be awarded training without reference to the technicalities which hedge about the expenditure of government funds. There are no restrictions whatever upon the use of the Elks' fund, and it is to be employed in any or all such cases as the board may deem worthy. It is provided that the board might maintain a "gift fund" and receive donations, anticipating that just such emergencies might arise.

PEDEREWski THANKS AMERICA FOR FOOD

Paris, March 21.—Premier Paderewski of Poland has sent to Herbert Hoover, director general of the allied relief, a message of thanks for the food sent to Poland which Mr. Hoover had informed him was "the gift of the American people."

"Your beautiful message touches me profoundly," said M. Paderewski. "I certainly remember all the noble efforts of four years ago to assist my country and I shall never forget your generous endeavors, which, alas, were frustrated by the merciless change of our common foe. It is a privilege for any man to co-operate in your great work and I highly appreciate the honor of having my name associated in a modest way with yours in the present activity of Col. Grove and his staff is beyond praise. Food of higher quality is arriving daily and thousands of our people are suffering less. I am, after four and one-half years of terrible suffering, realizing at last what wholesome and nutritious bread is. In behalf of the government I beg to offer you my sincere thanks."

RIVER CONTINUES TO RISE RAPIDLY

Downtown business men who have establishments in the vicinity of Rock river are considerably worried over the rapid rise of the water. The river has been rising continually for the past week and today it is as high as at any time last spring.

Last spring several downtown basements were flooded and it was impossible to start fires in several of the buildings, and it is thought that the same thing will happen this spring unless the water starts to subside within a short time.

NEW HIGH SCHOOL TO BE CITY'S FIRST BIG STEP AHEAD

The new high school will be the city's first big step forward, as a city, to make itself worthy of the people who are daily coming here to make it their home. The General Motors Corporation has stated clearly that it will not extend its plant or bring men here until the city can house them and care for them, so that they will be content to stay. The new high school is a body of good, that it may grow. The city must do its part by providing attractive modern schools. Our present high school is badly overcrowded; classes are held in the attic and the basement.

Even if Janesville were not to grow more than it did in the last ten years, we should need the new high school as planned. How much more we need it now all is a matter of time. Therefore, for the good of the city, when money is expended for education, it is too much for the good, that it may grow. For your own good, that you may be proud of Janesville, and that you may see your property increase in value, vote for the bond issue for the site for the new high school.

Huge Deficit is Shown in 1919 Belgian Budget

Brussels, March 21.—In introducing the budget for 1919, showing a deficit of 600,000,000 francs, which it is proposed to cover by the income tax and taxes on inheritances, tobacco, beer and spirits, M. Delcroix, the premier, said yesterday: "The liquidation of the cost of the war has been a heavy burden on the people. The existence of the country is at stake, but our great allies are undertaking the task of rebuilding Europe in a spirit of generosity. Our national existence depends upon promises made us, and I think I can confidently tell you they will be kept."

MYSTERY SHROUDS DEATH OF WOMAN; INQUEST TOMORROW

That the woman who was found dead in her home, 225 Park street Wednesday, had been going under the assumed name of Mrs. Mary Jane or rather real name was Mrs. Margaret Daggett was revealed today by James Kessey, Freeport, her brother, who said he had not heard from her for five years.

Why the woman refused to communicate with her relatives and why she adopted an alias will be brought out at the coroner's inquest in municipal court tomorrow morning at 9:30.

The body of Mrs. Daggett was interred in Oak Hill cemetery this afternoon after brief funeral services from the home of her mother, Mrs. J. P. Kessey, 1000 North Main street. A pocketbook containing $1.50 was found under a table cloth in the home yesterday. Numerous other articles were picked up to be used at the inquest.

Although evidence was procured that Mrs. Daggett had made pledges to buy Liberty bonds and War Savings stamps no receipts were found. The theory that she was a victim of a four play has been practically abandoned.

Mrs. Daggett had apparently been dead five weeks when her body was discovered Wednesday.

Miss Caroline Palmer was the leader. She gave a short biography of Dow, calling attention to some of his victories in the temperance work.

High School News

Announcement was made at the high school this morning by Supt. Faust that the annual spring vacation would be held during the week of April 1-7. A considerable discussion among the high and grade school teachers, the motion for it was passed by a large majority at the last meeting of the teachers. The vacation this year is earlier than usual, but due to the lateness of Easter it was thought advisable to have it in the third week of April.

The Triangle club met at 6:15 last evening for their semi-monthly supper. A short business meeting was held and plans taken up for some kind of an entertainment to be held later in the year.

The sale of war saving and thrift stamps was discontinued for the present at the high school. It is expected that some movement will soon be taken by the student body whereby they will again be put on sale.

The last issue of the official paper of the Beloit high school was received at school this morning by a student, and read with utmost interest by several of the upper classmen. The paper states that at the basketball game last Friday the Beloit students at times actually drowned out all opposition.

If such a thing did happen the Janesville fans are unwary of it, as the purple bunch throughout most of the game kept remarkably silent, for such a large crowd. The only time that any noise was made by them was before the game started. The Janesville fans were fully determined to make Beloit know that they are there and some great noise is expected to be made under the direction of cheer leaders kept Fuchs and Harry Pierce.

Gen. Pershing's Own Story of the Argonne Fight! FREE—with Next Sunday's Chicago Tribune

General Pershing has written another story—even more thrilling than his document on the St. Mihiel offensive. This is the story of the now famous Argonne fight. General Pershing himself, tells vividly of the American victory in the Argonne Forest during the closing days of the war and what proved one of the big factors which led to the signing of the Armistice. Read it in next Sunday's Chicago Tribune.

Also Map 15 in. x 20½ in.—In four colors

With this story comes a four-color war map of the Argonne. Here you can see exactly where this long time inactive sector suddenly became a fiery turmoil over night. This detailed map will be published in the color section, and shows the American daily lines of advance in the first, second and last phases—the towns captured—the number of divisions in line—the supporting French troops—the enemy defenses, railroads and water courses. It shows the progress day-by-day until Sedan was reached and the Huns' main line of communication was severed with only an armistice or surrender to avert complete disaster.

Do not miss this Argonne story by General Pershing. Be sure to get the Argonne map. Both have much historical value. If any you knew fought in the Argonne you will want to study the map while you read the story. Have your newsdealer reserve a copy of next Sunday's Chicago Sunday Tribune for you.

Support All Endeavor to Make Janesville and Vicinity a Bigger and Better Community.*AN OPTIMISTIC OUTLOOK.

Despite many of the handicaps under which the nation has been laboring because of administrative and legislative action, or lack of action,
the business outlook is much better than anticipated. The City National Bank of New York gives an optimistic view of the situation in the following discussion:

"The general feeling about the outlook for business this year is at least as good as it was a month ago and on the whole probably better. This is encouraging, because at that time pessimistic sentiment was increasing,
and the idea was prevalent that price reductions were to be the order of the day and that unemployment would increase rapidly. Neither of these predictions has been verified, and a good many people who were expecting their verification are not so certain about it now. There have been declines in prices during the month and more declines than advances, but the declines have been orderly and accomplished in a manner which has contributed to confidence rather than to demoralization, and there have been developments giving strength to the situation. Employment still hesitates, but the volume of retail trade is large, which means that the consumption of staple goods is at a high rate. The steel mills are still working at a pace which exceeds their capacity, and although new orders are not coming fast enough to cover production, they are in fair volume.
There is talk of further price reductions and some will probably be made in time to stimulate spring business.

"In textiles the mills are running on part time and orders are light, but retailers and jobbers are working down their stocks, and the situation as a whole looks stronger than it did a month ago. There have been further moderate reductions in cotton goods, which now perhaps average 35 per cent below the high level. In woolens the leading producer has opened the lines which will be offered at retail next fall upon a basis 15 per cent below the opening a year ago for last fall's retail trade, and 35 per cent below the high level of last year.
These figures inspire confidence.

"What is required is more confidence that the reductions for the present and the confidence seems to be growing. In textiles goods are down to the present basis of costs, and manufacturers are willing to do business without profit for the sake of keeping their organizations intact.

"There does not seem to be any good reason for expecting further declines before living costs are reduced and this is not likely until after another crop of foodstuffs has been marketed. The situation in foodstuffs is stronger than a month ago.
Wheat has recovered to 10 to 12 cents per pound in February. The foreign demand for meats is enormous and will be larger as soon as Germany has arranged credits which will allow purchases to be made.

"Building permits in cities reporting to Bradstreet's showed a gain in January, and there is more talk than heretofore that construction must go ahead in spite of high costs."

NEED NOT WORRY.

The argument is sometimes made that the pure bred stock business may be overdone. DeWitt C. Wing, associate editor of the Breeder's Gazette, has the following to say on the subject:

"We have heard men, not optimists exactly, wonder and fret about the coming of the day when the pure bred business would be overdone. They may save their worry. They will never live to see the day when the business of saturation will be reached.
Those who are engrossed constantly in pure bred affairs are apt to think that the percentage of improved animals to scrubs is larger than it really is. Anyone who attempts to survey the industry at large is at once convinced of the startling paucity of pure bred as compared to the whole stock of the nation.

"Wisconsin, for instance, is recognized as the premier dairy state in the Union. The percentage of pure bred dairy bulls to grades and scrubs is surely higher in the Badger State than in any other; and yet a recent census of the bulls in use in six counties (Pond du Lac, Barron, Ashland, Monroe, Shawano, and Winnebago) shows that the percentage of pure bred sires runs as follows: 28, 25, 17, 30, 15 and 20 per cent. If Wisconsin's dairy sires are less than one-third pure bred, what shall we say for other states, and for other kinds of stock?

"The danger of over-production of pure bred sires, those with both the pedigree and the individuality, is nil.
The danger lies all the other way."

A WISE SELECTION.

The Janesville Housing corporation stockholders are to be congratulated upon their selection of the board of directors chosen to carry on the work of providing homes for the working people who will come to this city to engage in industry.

"The gentlemen who will direct the affairs of the corporation are representative of that large group of Janesville men and women who can see the necessity for building for the future. They are men who have made successes in their own businesses.
With the assurance that they will devise their efforts to making comfortable the men, women and children who will come here in future years, without thought of private gain,

makes the housing problem most simple.

These men are accustomed to doing things in a big way and each is qualified to carry on this most important work without delay and in a manner which will be satisfactory to the large number of stockholders they represent.

A WORTHY CAUSE.

The Red Cross activities have been supported by the American people during the period of the war with a whole-hearted spirit which has won for them the love and respect of the entire world. Many sacrifices have been made in the last four years to raise funds to carry on this wonderful humanitarian work.

Now comes a campaign which is just as important but which requires little sacrifice. Every citizen should realize its importance and make a special effort to contribute. It is the drive for used clothes which may be sent to war sufferers in Europe.

All that is asked is for clothing which the American people would never wear again—the winter garments which are being discarded, the old shoes which are not good enough to be repaired, the old coats and dresses and suits, the underwear which would go to the rag-bag because it is beginning to wear a little,
the dresses and petticoats and shoes and suits which the children have outgrown. These cast-off clothes, which would bring a more pitiable fate to the old-clothes man, would prevent much suffering overseas.

The American Red Cross proposes to send all the clothing gathered direct to the suffering people of Europe.
The refugees of northern France, Belgium, Italy, Greece, Albania, Montenegro, Serbia, Roumania, Czechoslovakia, Palestine and Poland are all wearing the same garments they had on when they were driven from their homes
four years ago.

Let everyone who has used garments, get them ready to send to the sufferers. Co-operate with the local Red Cross chapter in its work of collection. It will cause you little inconvenience and it will make a woman or child comfortable.

The public has been extended an invitation to visit the schools next week. Supt. Faust and the teachers are back of the move. They hope to acquaint parents of school children with the conditions in the schools as they really exist. There will be no program or other feasts and those who take advantage of the opportunity to visit the situation will see the pupils at their regular work. Every parent who has the interest of their children at heart should make plans at some time during next week to visit the schools.

Before spring is over, people are going to know more about bond issues than they ever did before. Not only are we locally interested in bond issues, but the Victory loan is coming up on the horizon. Even the railroad administration has a plan to float a bond issue of $200,000,000.

Who could have foreseen 20 years ago that Wisconsin Indians would be planning to attend a special agricultural school provided by the university so that they could equip themselves to carry on more profitable farming? In truth, times do change.

The first step in successful gardening is to plan a lay-out which will not only encourage maximum production but will provide an easy method of cultivation. Now is the time to get busy on Victory Garden plans.

SCIENTIFIC NOTES.

The use of binder-twine and the contents of upholstered sofas as the vital portions of cigars has come to style since America entered the war.
It seems to be continuing with success
since the signing of the armistice.

The substitution of the slide-trum-bone for music in many of the cafes is now the slide-trum-bone that really put the foot in substitute.

The imitation Bronx cocktail is accepted generally now as a complete. While it is impossible to use point, an expensive substitute such as gasoline in the cocktail, science has come to the rescue with certain ingredients which lend the desired taste. However much they may lack authority and punch.

In the gentle paths of diplomacy
it is customary to get results by following the ancient law: Lie for a lie and a truth for a truth.

A CLERICAL ERROR.
It chanced like this: Attorney Small,
Touching the estate of Mary Gryder,
Declared thus: "And in the fall
She put her apples down in cider."
Which, when his youthful typist
heard,
Although her eyes grew wide and wider,
She wrote it down without a word:
"She put her apples down inside her."

—Walter Pulitzer.

ELEVATING THE DRAMMER.

If the conductor is busy with a pad and pencil and fails to stop her car when you want to get off, treat her gently. She is writing a play. If her gently. She is writing a play. If the barkeep stands with his back to you for twenty minutes when you are in a hurry to catch a train, do not be angry. He is adding up the day's takings, but he isn't. He is busy on the second act of his play.

The teamsters are writing plays
while waiting at corners for traffic signals, and the barbers are jotting down ideas on the shaving paper between strokes of their razors.

The other day, when a street car ran off the track and an amateur play-bankrupt, fifteen manuscripts all mixed up, and the public is going to have some trouble in getting the run of the plots. These plays will probably be called "Reveries," which start nowhere and end three miles farther down the road.

Between the writing of plays, and even during the writing of them, people follow many professions and pursues. So long as he is writing a play, the average man doesn't care what he does on the side to make a living. There is even one man who writes on his play mornings and evenings.

Whenever a person can't find anything else to do, he takes off his coat,

The Weather's Got Him

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Janesville Daily Gazette, March
21, 1879.—E. E. Burdick, son of Col.
Burdick, has just completed some very fine oil paintings, one of which is now in Mayor Norcross's office. They are all excellent and reflect great credit on the young artist.

Marshal Russell captured three drunken men yesterday and took them to jail. Like the Irishmen in the army he captured them by surrounding them. He collared the most unruly one of the trio and made the other two lead the way. This morning they were brought before Justice Pritchard and sentenced to five days in jail.

Among the interesting things which Dug King brought back from his eastern trip is a catalogue of the articles accumulated in the dead letter office and sold at auction. In the list we find Easter eggs, pigs' feet, fox skins, boots and shoes. They all make a curious collection for Uncle Sam to handle. Enoch Taylor, colored, met with a serious accident at the Doty works this afternoon. His right hand in some way came in contact with a saw and in an instant his right forefinger was severed and the middle finger badly smashed. He was at once taken to Dr. St. John's office, where he was given surgical treatment. He has been in the Doty works for ten years and is reported to be one of the most faithful and best workmen.

M. M. Conant has been to Atchison, Kansas, to visit his son. He returned lightens up his belt and says: "Well,

I guess I'll write a play." An average of 385 authors are writing plays on the same subject. The next 385 are at the same time writing plays on another subject, the two subjects being different in that in one of them the husband fools the wife and in the other the wife fools the husband.

Out of a possible 2,946,465 plays written every year 37,465 of them are read by producers, 465 are accepted for production, 55 are produced and live last more than two weeks.

profitable as gadding the streets.

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

AFTER THE BATTLE.

Laughter will follow the sighing as sunshine will follow the rain. The rose in the autumn is dying, but in spring it will blossom again.
The storm of today will pass over,
the mantle of snow will depart,
and the fields will be fragrant with clover and peace will come back to the heart.

The foibles of today will be trifles as soon as tomorrow is born; The fear that oppresses and stifles will pass with the coming of morn. And the burdens that now you are bearing in time you will gladly recall.

As proof of your courage and daring,
and you will rejoice in them
all. The rose, if it blossomed forever, we'd value no more than seven-years' joy. Our joys are all linked to endeavor;
we must work for the pleasures
we need. And never a pulse would beat faster nor leap as a battle was won.
Unless a man had coped with disaster and fought till the struggle was done.

The joy of success isn't founded on deeds that are easy to do;
It is fighting by dangers surrounded and seeing the long battle

This is because calcium exerts a pec-

are replaced with new material and soon the skin renews itself with firm-

"Prince Charlie"
Charles Edward, the grandson of James II of England, sometimes called Bonnie Prince Charlie, was known as the young pretender, son of James II.
At the time of the rising of 1745 he was at one time very near entering London, but the fatality that hung over the Stuarts overwhelmed him. He retreated to Scotland, where he and his army were utterly routed at Culloden. With him the direct line of the Stuarts became extinct. He died January 31, 1788.

Frogs as Barometers.

Certain animals, according to a London naturalist, appear to act as live barometers. And in proof of this he says that while frogs remain yellow nothing but fine weather may be expected; but should their coats begin to assume a brown hue it is a sign of coming bad weather.

Rum Made in Philadelphia.

Rum distilled from molasses was among Philadelphia's principal manufactures before the revolution. Dr.
Benjamin Rush wrote to "Mad Anthony" Wayne after the capture of Stony Point: "Our street rang with nothing but your name. You are remembered constantly next to our good and great Washington, over our claret and madeira." Both were much in demand at the city's typical entertainments of the stranger.

Piston Rings.

Piston rings, of which millions are used yearly, are shaped by centrifugal action from molten metal in the special machine of DeLavaud. In tests at Columbia university, it has been shown that these rings are not only m-faster than by other methods, but are actually stronger and more resilient than rings of the same chemical composition cast in sand. The microscope reveals a more uniform and finer structure.

Hint for Gardeners.

Buddy was helping work in the garden, when grandpa told him to pull some radishes for supper; the ground was hard, and Buddy had great difficulty in trying to pull them; finally he gave it up, and going to grandpa said:
"I wist you'd planted 'em upside down, dranna; then they wouldn't be so hard to pull."

Faith

By PEARL B. MEYER

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"I don't see how in the world we can, dear. With brother in France, and with the awful cost of everything, we simply have not got the two dollars—or even one—as much as I long to do it."

Faith looked very downcast. "I suppose," she said with a sigh, "I might have taken my vacation at home, and not spent anything at all. Then we would have had enough for a few weeks."

"No, Faith." Her mother spoke decidedly. "You owed yourself one week of complete rest. Don't think of that again."

"But isn't there something we could give up in the eating line?" persisted Faith.

"You mean something else." Her mother laughed. "Dear child, no; unless you want us to give up eating altogether."

"You are a very discouraging person," Faith declared. "And the worst of it is—you are right. I know as well as you we haven't the money; still I cannot bear the thought of the next loan coming along, and of us simply ignoring it."

They sat silent for awhile, each trying to work out impossible plans in their eager minds.

"Mother," cried Faith, suddenly, "I'm going to live up to my name. This whole blessed country is as full as it can stick of $2 bills. Why shouldn't a few of them float our way, to our four flights or in from the air-shaft, and land right in our yearning pocket-books? It isn't reasonable to think there are so many, many of them, and that at least one can't find its homing way to us." Noting her mother's quizzical expression, she added: "Don't you laugh at me; I'm in earnest. I'm going to begin to invite them right away, and keep it up all week." She rose from the table as she concluded.

"Oh, youth, youth," exclaimed her mother with a half-dubious, half-merry shake of her head.

Faith crushed her little sport hat down, until one eye was almost totally eclipsed. "You just wait and see," were her last words as she darted out of the door.

Her new game afforded her much amusement. She found herself seeing $2 bills here, there, and everywhere. Her eyes seemed to pierce women's handbags, and discover whole pests of them curled up together.

"Now, if that woman would only open her purse," she imagined whimsically, "out might pop a $2 bill, and dodge right into my lap, clatting me as owner."

She commenced to smile at her own nonsense. The woman at whom she had been staring glared back savagely; then peered furtively down at herself to see what might be evoking laughter from her vis-a-vis.

The glare spent its force unheeded. Faith was absorbed in her endeavor to figure out how many times $2 the electric car company engaged a week.

"Transfers," remarked a voice just above her hat.

Faith jumped. "Two dol—" She stopped and turned red with embarrassment. Then she dared not look up for fear someone had heard her. The conductor passed on. Faith realized that her nonsense, instead of bringing her in $2, had just cost her five cents.

Her merry mood did not forsake her at the office.

"My goodness, your vacation certainly did you good," exclaimed her next-desk neighbor, staring inquisitively into Faith's happy countenance. "What's his name?"

"Two dollars," chirped Faith, enigmatically, as she slipped into the familiar chair.

The week flew past in a manner quite unlike the usual first week after vacation. Faith found herself cultivating a semicomical, semiserious condition of mind. She dreamed absurdities which she at the same time frankly acknowledged as such.

But although as the days passed the $2 bill failed to materialize, Faith experienced no disappointment. Her hope was too high. Such an unselfish wish; she reasoned, and so modest at that; surely the fates must smile on her sooner or later. At any rate, she told herself, the state of expectancy in which she lived made her fairly bubble with eagerness. Her work seemed easier than ever before; her fingers performed impromptu jig on the typewriter keys; her mind was never so alert.

But Saturday came and no $2 bill had found the strength to manage the four flights of stairs, neither had one waded itself in at the window from the airshaft. However, shortly after noon-hour, Faith, with eyes glowing and cheeks flushed, bounded up the stairs, two steps at a time.

"Mother!" Her voice heralded her coming before she flung open the door. "I've got it—I've got it!"

Her mother counted the rest of her stitches and then looked up.

"You look as if you had a fever," she remarked. "You should not dash up the stairs like that."

Unheeding, Faith, flung something into her lap.

"Look! I've got my $2. I tell you, and it is coming every week, too," she cried breathlessly. "Where do you think I found it? Just where I never thought of wishing, mother—in my pay envelope!"

The Babbling Brook goes singing Down to the ocean deep. I guess it knows 'twill get there Before it's time to sleep. The little bird goes flying All day far from its nest. But when the sun is setting It comes back home to rest. And little roiling children At night creep up the stairs, And when in bed they fold their hands And softly say their prayers. This is what the little black cricket sang all night while the three little rabbits were sound asleep. But I guess they heard her in their dreams for the next morning Billy Bunny, Mr. Lucky, did you have a dream about the Babbling Brook, and little birds and sleepy children?"

"I believe I did," replied the old gentleman rabbit, as he helped himself to another slice of cake for they were all at the breakfast table, you see.

"And so did I," said Mrs. Bunny. "Isn't it queer we all had the same dream? But the little cricket never said a word. Maybe she was asleep for I should think after singing all night she wouldn't be able to stay awake. But, still, you never can tell what a lucky cricket can do."

Well, after breakfast, Uncle Lucky went out to the barn to get the Lucky mobile. The Old Red Rooster was washing it off so as to make it look nice and shiny.

"Good morning, Shanty," said Uncle Lucky. And the reason the old gentleman rabbit called him "Shanty" was because he was short for Chanticleer, you know.

"Good-morning, Mr. Lucky. Left-hindfoot," said the Old Red Rooster, and then he dusted off the Lucky mobile cushions with his feather duster tail.

Well, by this time Billy Bunny had finished polishing the front door knob and feeding the canary, so the three little rabbits and good-by to Mrs. Bunny and drove away. And by and by, after a mile, or maybe three, they saw their friend, the Old Brown Horse.

He was eating grass in a nice big pasture, and when he felt tired he went and lay down under a big shady tree.

"I'm having an easy time, these days," he said, coming up close to the Old Snake Fence and stretching his neck over the top rail. "My master has bought an automobile and I've nothing to do but eat and sleep."

"Goodness, meebus," exclaimed Uncle Lucky. "Don't you get tired of that?"

"No-o," replied the Old Brown Horse. "I like to eat when I'm hungry, and when I fall asleep I don't know anything until I wake up, and then I'm hungry all over again."

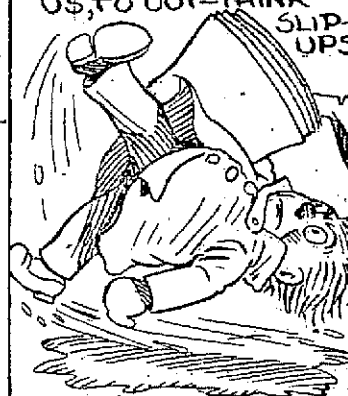

"Would you like to take a drive with us?" asked the kind old gentleman rabbit. And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

MYERS THEATRE.
"Oh, Boy," the smartest musical of the season and the fourth New York Musical Theatre musical comedy success will be the attraction at the Myers Theatre Saturday, March 22, evening only.

This charming musical comedy comes here with the strongest endorsement of the metropolitan press. Mr. Ray C. Crampton and William Elliott, under whose management the company is touring, will send here cast of favorites including Lavinia, Winne, Theodore Warfield, Helen Dubois, Anna Little, Harry Myers, Franklyn Graham, Thomas C. Leary, J. C. Rome and Johnnie Phillips.

MYERS.
Boyle Woolfolk will present at the Myers theatre, Tuesday, March 25, Jack Norworth's chummy musical "Odds and Ends," the book of which is credited to Jack Norworth and Blide Dudley and the music by Norworth and James Byrnes. Heading the comedy division is the well known comedian, Max Bloom who possesses extraordinary mimetic gifts. Mr. Bloom has not only the best comedy role of his career but displays new and unexpected facilities in pantomime, laugh getting whimsicalities in song and up-to-date tricks of impromptu farce that give his entire performance a hair trigger touch that would make the most hardened grouch grin with glee.

"Odds and Ends" is really a series of comical sketches or travesties on incidents and events that have occupied public attention and have proven such fertile fields for material for the humorous side of musical comedy, or what is of the latest vintage—the topical musical revue.

The original scenic production is being carried on tour and it reaches in all a company of fifty to present the various scenes including a large chorus of the happiest, snappiest, cheeriest lot of girls one could wish for.

Florence Rayfield, who possesses an irrepressible sense of genuine humor, sets and maintains a pace for the cast and chorus that results in a performance of extraordinary celebrity, confidence and dash. Others in the cast are Donald Dunn, Rupert Neeley, David Robertson and Harriet Neeley. During the action of the twenty-two musical numbers are rendered, one of the most popular being "Fancy You Posing Me."

HEARD FROM OUR SOLDIERS AND SAILORS

SGT. ALFRED GRISWOLD
The following letter has been received by Mrs. Carrie Griswold, 1421 Ruger avenue, from her son, Sgt. Alfred Griswold, who is with the A. E. F.

"February 15.
"Last Tuesday General Pershing received my division, the 2nd. Today the major looked us over. The major looked us over and I am O. K. No crotches or bad teeth. Have moved again and hope to move once more soon, this time for the coast view. In December and January. A big town before the war but pretty quiet now. On Nov. 11 we were told to pack up as we were to have a seven day fire in the mountains. Train due at 3:30 p. m. Rode all night and arrived at 11:30 p. m. Saw some wonderful scenes going through the mountains and tunnels. This town is way down in the southern corner of France. The old Romans built lots of the roads and the buildings here. After we got off the train we were registered and sent to different hotels. Thirty of us signal men were sent to the Hotel Terminus. It was real chilly and we could see the snow-clad Alps.

"The town is down in a valley with high mountains all around. Slept on the fourth floor and had a fine view. Spent the first two days in sight-seeing and photographing. Lots of old stone buildings dating back to the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries. I spent all my evenings at the 'Y' where the 'Y' women served hot chocolate free at 5 and 9 o'clock. Two big rooms had billiard tables, two togers for lounging and reading, another for writing and two moles for entertainment. A building was used as a movie place. There were tennis courts across the street in a place that formerly belonged to the kings of Italy.

"The 'Y' had trips and excursions going to the Alps in Italy and also in Switzerland.

"The rest of my stay in the town we liked it. Famous places adjacent. Well guess I have written a real letter this time and it may be the last as we are going to leave again soon for the every day to points of interest. Via coast."

Recipe for Happiness.

This gospel of happiness is one which every one should lay to heart. Set out with the invincible determination that you will bear burdens and not impose them. Whether the sun shines or the rain falls, show a glad face to your neighbor. If you must fall in life's battle, you can at least fall with a smile on your face.—Well, spring.

Heart and Home Problems

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been keeping company with a very nice young man and he comes from fine parents. He is also well educated. The other night when he came to call on me he tried to kiss me and I was so enraged that I picked up the first thing I saw, which was a book, and not stopping to think, I hit him in the face with it very hard. I was very sorry after I did it and begged his pardon.

The next day there was a red mark on his face and he won't speak to me now. Please tell me how to get over this. I value his friendship very much. I was always taught to slap any boy who tried to kiss me.

Please don't blame me too much.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: There is a young man who has been working at the same place my father works and he wants to meet me. My best friend's beau is a friend of this young man and he has asked him to get me to come to his home and to arrange for him to meet me there.

(1) Would it be all right for me to go?

(2) What should you say when a boy asks if he may call, and which one sets the time for to do so?

IGNORANT BETH.

(1) Yes, it will be all right for you to go.

(2) When a boy asks to call tell him that he may call, and which one sets the time for to do so.

Then it is the girl's place to set the time.

the night. Sometimes, however, the boy asks if a certain night will be convenient.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: One evening coming home from church, which is about a block and a half from my home, two boy friends caught up with me and asked if they might walk along. We went to the front of my home and talked for about half an hour.

Mother thought it was dreadful because there were two of them. I thought nothing of it as they are both friends and very fine boys. I think one of the boys understood that I would not go with him and I thought he just came along with the other boy.

What should a girl do if invited to go to a certain place with a boy, if she knows she will go, but does not want to go with him? If she refuses and later gets an invitation can she accept it if she wishes to?

THANK YOU.

It was all right for the boys to catch up with you, but you should not have talked to them in front of your house. At such a time invite them to come in, and if they refuse say good night and go in yourself. The fact that there were two boys should make no difference.

Say, "Thank you, I can't." He will not know why you can't and then you will be free to accept another invitation. If he presses you for a reason, say, "Because." "Because" is an aggravating answer, but it is what women resort to when they do not wish to explain.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: When a young man takes a girl to church or to the movies, should she ask him to come in when they get home?

THANK YOU.

If it is not later than 10 o'clock, it is all right for her to invite him in for a few minutes.

Household Hints

MENU HINT.
Breakfast: Malted Grapes, Coffee Cakes, Marmalade, Coffee.
Luncheon: Farina Soup, Corn Salad, Lemon Graham Bread, Raisin Cookies, Dinner: Baked Salmon, Baked Potatoes, Creamed Carrots, Caramel Pudding, Coffee.

FOR THE KIDDEES.

Jellied Doughnuts: as good as inexpensive. Warm a pint of milk enough to melt one eighth pound of butter. When butter is all melted add two well-beaten eggs, one cup sugar, pinch salt, teaspoon vanilla. To this add one cup yeast which has been dissolved in a half cup warm sweetened water. Last, add a quart of flour.

Mix and beat well. Raise in warm place until double its bulk, which should be about two hours. Then take two spoonfuls of dough on your well-floured hand, put a little nest in middle, fill with good firm jelly, pat it into shape and round, let rise on a floured board for a half hour, then fry in hot fat.

These can also be rolled or cut into crinkles with cutter or shaped into crinkles.

This makes about 25 doughnuts.

CANDIES.

Enfants Fudge:—To two cups of sugar, add one cup of milk, and one cup of butter. In the meantime dissolve six tablespoons of cocoa, one teaspoon vanilla and butter size of an egg in hot water, and add to the previous mixture. Before taking from the stove add one cup of shredded wheat broken in small pieces. Remove and beat four or five minutes. The result will be a fine white cream fudge.

Uppoon Candy:—One-half cup New Orleans molasses; fill cup with corn syrup. Add two cups of granulated sugar, one tablespoon of butter, two of vinegar. Cook like taffy.

Take from fire, add one-half teaspoon of soda, beat briskly. Pour over thick layer of papered corn, press in pan, before quite hard, cut in squares. For three quarts of candy.

Scant measurements make sufficient dressing for two boxes of puffed wheat. Obey before using and the oldest to the youngest members of the family will enjoy it.

RECIPES.

Farina Soup:—One pint boiling water, two tablespoons corn syrup, one cup cold water, one teaspoon salt. Stir the farina into the boiling water gradually, cover it and let boil 30 minutes; add one pint milk; beat the yolks of two eggs with one tablespoon milk; add at the last moment.

Corn Salad:—Two cups canned corn, without liquid, to one cup chopped cabbage. Add a dressing made as follows: One tablespoon flour, one tablespoon butter, substitute milk to a paste; one teaspoon mustard, one tablespoon sugar, one teaspoon salt, half cup vinegar; pour over paste; add one egg beaten light; beat until thick and serve on lettuce leaves.

Baked Salmon:—Make a gravy by browning two tablespoons vegetable fat, then add one pint milk; butter a baking dish and line with cracker crumbs, then a layer of salmon and so on until pan is filled; then pour on the gravy, putting cracker crumbs on top. Bake 20 minutes.

For the old thing told thirteen eggs and set on them and would you believe it? Out of the thirteen chickens hatched twelve had wooden legs and the thirteenth was a wood-pecker?

Of course, she was a bum.

During the laugh that followed, Colonel Harta Beaten strode out of the room, thinking hard of the next one he was going to spring on them when Bobby Dinkbitts wasn't around.

It Couldn't Be Done.

There was a hard boiled sergeant who delighted in "picking on" the men just from civilian life. One day he was giving the command "Right dress," and one of the fellows was napping and did not do as commanded, after the sergeant had called it out several times. Then the sergeant was furious and shouted to the fellow: "Hey, you, dress right!" And somebody else hollered: "How can you dress right on $30 a month?"

OUR FAMILY PRIDE.

Reader friend wants me to write something about pride of birth. How I wish that there were as swift a "meeting of minds" on the many many subjects that letter friends suggest need public airing, as there is on this one.

You see, a neighbor of mine has lately acquired a family tree. She has some beautiful white birch trees on the border of her lawn, which are used to be proud of, but I think she would have them all cut down before she would part with the book in which that family tree flourishes. And the funny part of the thing is that there are no specially distinguished ancestors on that tree. It is the height, as it were, rather than the lineage or the fruit of the tree of which she is proud.

Simply Because They Can't Trace Back Many Generations.

And so when my letter friend wrote "Many persons are proud of their ancestry, not because of anything in the family history, but because of the thought there may be, but simply because they can trace back many generations, and the further back the greater glory," I recognized in him a house and a yellow sufferer.

Isn't pride of birth ever justifiable? you may question. Of course it is, when it has a real foundation. But surely the ability to trace your ancestry back a distance is not such a foundation. Everyone in the world has an ancestry extending back an equal distance. When people say with pride that they can trace back a couple of hundred years to some early settler, surely "from yon blue heavens above us bent the grand old gardener and his wife smile at the claims of long descent." What About the Roots of the Tree? But suppose you say, at the roots of the tree there is some very distinguished ancestor—is not that worthy of pride? Here again, I must quote from my friend, "There is nothing to be proud of when we trace back to an illustrious forbear unless his descendants have sustained his ideals. One ought to be so ashamed that the standards of the family have been lowered that one would want to hide the tree rather than flaunt it."

When One Has a Right to Be Proud of Pedigree.

"Pedigree," he goes on, "may or may not be creditable. We may have reason to be proud of some of our ancestors and ashamed of others (you've heard of the man who gave up further research in regard to his family tree when he found a murderer hanging on one of its branches). On the other hand, pedigree is indeed something to be proud of if we can point to a long line of ancestors who have passed through many generations without a blot, who stand for education and ideals and service to the community."

But surely, no one who had such an ancestry would flaunt it. He could not help having a high pride in it, but I think it would be the pride that would express itself in so carrying on the torch that his ancestors might not be ashamed of him, rather than in boasts of birth.

WITH THE WOMEN OF TODAY

The women of this country are certainly going to do all in their power to keep the positions they have gained in industrial circles during the war, and at the same time give the real deal. Many of the women of the National League for Women's Service who have heretofore been busy in the war, are now canvassing their cities in search of jobs for returned soldiers.

The women who are canvassing the city are furnished with credentials by the National League for Women's Service. A particular section in which to work, so that employers will not be visited by more than one worker.

If there are no positions open at the time a worker visits the employer she is instructed to leave a registration card with him. Whenever he finds need for a man or men he needs only to forward this card to the employment service.

Women who are holding soldiers' jobs will step down and out but that does not mean that they will ever go back to those very undesirable fields which were supposed to be "women's work." At least if the Y. W. C. A. can carry out its plan efficiently women will not go back to scrubbing office floors and other less arduous and less remunerative jobs.

Instead, girls who have held positions of soldiers during the period of the war and are now finding themselves replaced by returning doughboys, are to be fitted for new positions by the Y. W. C. A. Mrs. Frank Chamberlain has been made executive secretary of the Ohio and West Virginia territory taking up this work. Through her efforts thousands of girls and women will be trained for new work which will not conflict with that of the returning soldiers. The women will step out from their jobs for a soldier—but never down.

ABOUT SMOKING

Of course nobody cares any more what crowned heads do or think—in fact I believe that most people today are so busy that they have no time to be even incapable of thought, but nevertheless, here are a few interesting bits about the royal women of today.

Although many queens are hostile to smoking, the majority do not disdain the use of tobacco.

Ex-Queen Amelia of Portugal, for instance, is extremely fond of tobacco. She undoubtedly inherits this from her mother, the Countess of Paris, who even smoked cigars, and one day took to the pipe.

The Dowager Empress of Russia likewise enjoyed smoking, and her

THE BABY CUTTING TEETH

How many bones in the body of a child? The head is a bit of a puzzle, but I have a competent anatomist who tells me that a child has twenty-two teeth in the mouth, and that the first two are the temporary or baby teeth in the lower jaw, and the first two are the first permanent teeth in the upper jaw.

Just as middle age introduces the crisis of cancer, the crisis of childhood is the eruption of the first permanent teeth, and the eruption of the first permanent teeth is the crisis of childhood.

As soon as a tooth is cut the mother should begin brushing it. She may use a bit of clean muslin or gauze, or a soft, small toothbrush. One thorough brushing daily is sufficient for anybody's teeth unless there is some special reason for more frequent attention. It is surprising how early a child will learn to brush his own teeth, and he can acquire the habit none too early.

Thumb-sucking and the habit of sucking pacifiers, pieces of clothing or anything else must be sternly guarded against, for these habits deform the palate and upper teeth permanently.

The first teeth to be cut, usually the lower central incisors, appear on the sixth to the eighth month, and the rest of the twenty follow at intervals until about the latter part of the third year. Considerable delay in the cutting of teeth is of no significance if the child is healthy. Wide variations are normal in healthy infants.

The baby should pay his first visit to the dentist at the end of two years. From this time onward the dentist should examine the baby's teeth every six months, at least, and fill any cavities discovered with a suitable permanent filling and not cement. Some of the baby teeth must do the child's mastication for as long as ten years, and hence makeshift, temporary fillings are wrong. A careful dentist has no better patients than little tots two to three years old, provided he exercises tact and patience. Parents who allow the baby to decay are derelict in duty and have much to answer for in the future failure of the little one's health.

It is a great error to extract a temporary tooth prematurely, for the common mistake is the chief cause of irregular, unsightly and defective permanent teeth in later years. The roots of the baby teeth act as guides for the even eruption of the permanent teeth.

See that the toothbrush is kept scrupulously clean.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Best Makes Good Medicine. Good and the add of fruit make the blood more acid and so render rheumatism worse.

ANSWERS. All fruit acids actually render the blood more alkaline and the urine less acid. The ancient notion that the opposite was true was founded upon ignorance of physiology—and enthusiasm for the new definition "urea acid." And, as we have said, rheumatism times "rheumatism" is a little properly applied to a group of diseases depending on widely varying causes. As for "chronic rheumatism" there ain't no such animal!

The Last of the Aunties.

If there were no one in it would doctors be quite so determined to vaccinate people? Is compulsory vaccination more just than conscription, employment of a particular school of doctors?

ANSWER—1. Vaccination is a nuisance to doctors. It's "free" service, and they don't like it. And, as we have said, if he fails to dress and care for the wound in the same way he would care for any accidental wound, he is derelict in duty. 2. WOLVES OF THE SEA

I was glad to see him go and closed the door on him with a sigh of relief. It had all occurred so quickly, almost without effort on my part. I could do little but wonder what strange occurrence would be next. What, indeed, was there for me to do except to await developments? Only one thing occurred to me—I must discover some means immediately of communicating with Dorothy Fairfax.

The importance of this could not be overestimated. With myself quartered aft and eating in the cabin we were bound to meet sooner or later, and the girl must previously be warned of my presence aboard, or in her first surprise at the recognition I should be instantly betrayed. If I was to serve the girl there must be, first of all, intelligent co-operation between us. She must not only know of my presence on the Namur but also the purpose actuating me. I had reached this conclusion when a light, hesitating knock sounded at the door.

Gunsauls entered, garments over his arm, and laid out the pieces carefully one by one, evidently proud of his selection.

"The clothes seem to be all right, steward," I said, "and I judge will fit. Now hunt me up first of all something to shave with, then some tobacco and a pipe, and—yes, wait a second—writing materials. And, by the way, there are two staterooms astern. Who occupies the one to starboard—Senior Estada?"

"No, senior; it is the young lady."

"Oh, the one brought aboard last night. Have you seen her?"

"Si, senior; she is English and good to look at, but she sits and stares out the stern port. She will not speak or eat. I take in her breakfast, but she, touch not a morsel. So I tell Senior Estada, and he says, 'I bring her out to dinner with me; I'll make the hussy eat if I have to choke it down her dainty throat.'"

"Good; I'll have a look at her myself then. Now hurry up those things, steward, and remember what I sent you after."

He brought the shaving set and writing materials first, explaining that he would have to go down into the lazaret and break open some packages for the tobacco and pipe. The moment the fellow disappeared I grasped the opportunity. I dashed off a note hurriedly—a brief line merely stating my presence on board and begging her not to exhibit surprise at meeting me. I had no time in which to explain or make clear the situation. With this folded and concealed in my hand I silently pushed open the door.

I crept swiftly forward, following the circle of the staterooms, until I came to the closed door of the one I sought. I bent here an instant, listening for some sound from within, but heard none. Beyond doubt the girl was within and alone, and I must trust her quick intelligence to respond to my written message. I thrust it through the narrow opening above the sill, and the moment it disappeared within stole swiftly back to my own room. The action had not been seen, and yet I had scarcely a moment to spare. Before I could lather my face the steward returned, bearing in his hands tobacco and pipe.

Estada, however, remained away longer than I had anticipated he would, and I was fully dressed and comfortably smoking before he came down from the deck and crossed the cabin to my partially open door.

"The starboard watch has been called," he said, "and you are to take charge of the deck, relieving Levere. I waited to explain the situation to the men before you appeared. I suppose you are ready?"

"Ay, ay, senior," knocking the ashes out of my pipe and rising. He eyed my clothes disapprovingly.

"Rather a fancy rig, Gates, for a first officer on duty."

"Some style, I admit, senior, but they were all the steward offered me."

"You'll have to carry a hard fist, my man, to back up that costume aboard the Namur," he said coldly. "Those black devils are apt to mistake you for a plaything." I followed him up the stairs to the deck. Levere was still on duty, and came forward and shook hands at my appearance.

"Rather glad I didn't drown you," he said, intending to be pleasant. "But how you'll not run amuck in the after cabin."

"I shall try not to unless I have cause," I answered, looking him square in the eyes and determining to make my position clear at once. "Senior Estada tells me I am to relieve you. What is the course?"

"Southwest by half south."

"Do you know your position?"

"Only in a general way. We have held an east by south course since leaving the cape, until an hour ago, making about ten knots."

"Very well; I will figure it out as best I can. There is nothing further to report."

"No, senior; all has been as it is now."

He glanced toward Estada, not greatly pleased, I presume, with my brusqueness, yet finding nothing in either words or manner from which to evoke a quarrel. The latter had overheard our conversation, but he stood now with back toward us looking out on the sea off the port quarter. His silent indifference caused Levere to shrug his shoulders and disappear down the ladder on his way below. I turned my face to the man at the wheel—it was the giant negro, Cochose.

CHAPTER XV.

The Cabin of the Namur.

Both huge, black hands grasped the spokes, and it was evident that it required all his giant strength to control the bucking wheel. He was an ugly-looking brute, the lower portion of his face apellike and the wool growing so low as to leave him scarcely an inch of forehead. His eyes lifted an instant from the binnacle cast to glance at me curiously. They exhibited no flash of recognition.

For half an hour Estada hung about aft, apparently paying no attention to me, and yet watching my movements closely. There was little to be done, but I thought it best to keep the watch reasonably busy, so they might thus learn that I knew my work. They proved prompt and capable enough, although I was eyed with some curiosity when I first went forward, and, no doubt, was very thoroughly discussed behind my back. The idlers amidships were a totally different class—a mongrel scum, protanely chatting in Spanish or swaggering about the deck, their very looks a challenge. However, they kept out of my way, and I found no occasion to interfere with their diversions. After Estada left the deck the majority amused themselves gambling, and as I had received no orders to interfere I permitted the games to proceed. Mendez, interferred only once on occasion of a brief fight. My only instructions from the Portuguese on his going below was to call him at once if a sail was sighted. Apparently he was satisfied of my ability to command the deck.

No occasion to call him arose during my watch. It was still daylight, but with a purple gleam across the waters, when Levere arrived on deck for my relief. We were talking together about the wheel when Estada appeared in the companionway.

"Every promise of a clear night," he said, glancing about at the horizon. "Better change the course two points, Levere; we are lying in too close to the coast for our purpose. The table call will come very shortly, Senior Gates."

I washed up hastily in my stateroom and came out into the cabin, perplexed as to what might occur within the next few moments. Yet whatever the result there was no avoiding it. My every move was one of extreme caution.

Estada and Estevan awaited me. The latter was all rigged out, and with smooth black hair oiled and plastered down upon his forehead. I never held a more disagreeable face, or one which so thoroughly revealed the nature of a man. As I touched his hand, at Estada's brief introduction, it was as if I fingered a snake.

"This is your chair, Gates, and you will find we live well aboard the Namur—wine, women and song—hey, Manuel! Why not, when all are at command? Steward, you told the lady what my orders were. Then bid her join us."

We stood in silence, as Gunsauls crossed the deck and inserted a key in the after stateroom door. Manuel was grinning in full enjoyment, but the expression on the face of Estada was that of grim cruelty. I felt my hands grip like iron on my chair back and my teeth clench in restraint. God, but I would have liked to grip the fellow where he stood—all the bottled-up hatred in my soul struggling for action. Yet that would only mean the death of all hope, and I turned my eyes away from him and stared with the others at the opening door.

Out into the full light of the cabin the woman came and halted barely a step in advance of the steward, her head uplifted proudly, her eyes on us. Never before had I realized her beauty, her personality, as I did then. Her posture was not that of defiance nor of surrender; she stood as a woman defending her right to respect, sustained by a wonderful courage. I caught her glance, but there was no recognition in it; not by the flicker of an eyelid did she betray surprise, and yet in some mysterious manner a flash of intelligence passed between us. It was all instantaneous, for her gaze seemed to concentrate on Estada as though she knew him as leader.

"You sent for me? For what?" she asked, her Spanish clear and well chosen.

"To join us at meal," he answered unmoved. "It is better than to remain alone."

"Better! You must have a strange opinion of me to believe I would sit with murderers and thieves."

"Harsh words, senorita," and Estada grinned grimly. "Yet I expected them. There are many trades in the world by which men are robbed. We only work at the one we like best; nor will I discuss that with you. However, senorita, I can say that we have taken no lives in this last affair."

"No lives!" In sudden, incredulous surprise. "You mean my uncle lives?"

"If you refer to Fairfax—the one in whose room the chest was hidden, I can only reply truthfully that he lives. One of my men struck him down, but it was not a death blow. If that be the reason of your disdain there is no cause. This chair is held for you."

In a small camp in France a young negro was lazily unloading material from a freight car. His superior remarked to him that he was not very ambitious.

"Man," he said, "there is no use having ambition in this man's army; Uncle Sam gives me the same dollar if I set ambition or if I ain't got ambition."

After a grand review of German troops at Potsdam the Kaiser called out to the officer commanding the Prussian guard, in a voice loud enough to be heard by all the distinguished guests who were grouped in front of the palace: "Pick me out a hundred men from the Prussian guard. Then taking an arm of King Edward VII, who was there, he said: 'Come with me.' He escorted King Edward very delicately round the hundred men and then said banteringly: 'Well, do you think you could find a hundred men in England to beat them?'

"I don't know so much about that," promptly replied the late king, "but I could easily find fifty who would try."

Little Billy on his fourth birthday had received $10 from his grandmother and was taken to the bank, where it was deposited for him—the clerk giving him the usual bank book in which he entered, "By cash, ten dollars."

"The next time Billy saw his grandmother he said: 'Grandma, I want money for my birthday—and so was the man at the bank, 'cause he wrote in my book, 'By gosh, ten dollars.'"

When you wash your hair, be careful what you use. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulished coconut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats the most expensive soaps or anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water, and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

BIRD IS WORTH PRESERVING

Writer Deplores the Threatened Extinction of the Beautiful and Useful Upland Plover.

The upland plover, one of the most beneficial birds of all the winged host that once abounded in North America, has been hunted and shot to the verge of extermination, says Dumb Animals.

With the passing of the passenger pigeons, which even now so many friends of all birds find it hard to believe and of which a great many are not convinced, the plover seems marked for wholesale destruction. They were candidates for oblivion along with more than a score of other useful and beautiful species that could be spared from our vast and valuable native fauna.

There is a ray of hope that these birds may not be pursued to complete annihilation. The federal law for the protection of migratory birds makes it possible for the plover species to rehabilitate itself, provided the closed season be fixed to continue throughout the year. The upland plover is a migratory bird and an insectivorous bird. Its food consists of 97 per cent of animal forms which are chiefly the worst enemies to agriculture. The federal law fixes a closed season on migratory insectivorous birds to continue throughout the year with the exception of the bobolink or ricebird, but under the law the plover is classed as a migratory game bird and so its fate is precarious. These birds should not be shot.

GRANT REFUSED TO ANSWER

When President, He Declined to Tell House Where He Had Been During Absence.

During President Grant's administration a movement was started to call Grant to account for having been absent from Washington. The house asked him by resolution to inform it what official acts he had performed while away, says an exchange. The hero of Appomattox replied:

"I freely inform the house that from the time of my entrance upon my office, I have been in the habit, as were all of my predecessors, of absenting myself at times from the seat of government, and that during such absences I did not neglect or forego the obligations or duties of my office, but continued to discharge all of the executive offices, acts and duties, which were required of me as president of the United States. I am not aware that a failure occurred in any one instance of my exercising the functions and powers of my offices in every case requiring their discharge, or of my exercising all necessary executive acts in whatever part of the United States I may at the time have been."

Rheumatism Back on the Job With Its Old-time Fury

No Let-up in its Torture

Pretty soon you will be reaching for the liniment bottle again, for the millions of little pain demons that cause Rheumatism are on the warpath. Winter weather seems to awaken them to renewed fury.

But your Rheumatism cannot be rubbed away, because liniments and lotions cannot reach the disease. It is in the blood, and only a remedy that goes deep down in to the circulation and routs out the disease germs, can rid you of this disabling disease.

S. S. S. has given some wonderful results in treating Rheumatism. Being a purely vegetable blood remedy, it purifies the blood of every germ, and thus removes the cause of Rheumatism. Get a bottle today at your drugstore, and start on the right track.

PEOPLE FAVOR LEAGUE ON NON-PARTISAN BASIS

(By VICTOR McNAUGHT.)

St. Louis, Mo., March 21.—(Special Correspondence)—It is my purpose to tell us briefly as possible the state of public sentiment on the proposed League of Nations, as I found it on talking with business men, farmers, professional men, artists, and editors on a visit to nearly all the principal cities between New York and St. Louis. This is what I learned:

1. The bitterness, amounting almost to violence of expression, which characterizes the debate in the East, is lacking in the Central and Middle Western states.

2. In those parts, neither the President on the one hand, nor the opposing Senators, on the other, are wholly condemned. Nearly all of the principals in the discussion are given credit for patriotic and high-minded purposes.

3. The great masses of the people are for the League of Nations, as proposed, with the least of the amendments that have been suggested by Senator Lodge and former President Taft.

4. The only sure way to make the League generally acceptable to the American people is to amend it. Nearly all thoughtful persons wish to preserve the Monroe Doctrine, to limit America's police activities so far as possible to the Western Hemisphere, to be sure that America cannot be dragged into a foreign war against the popular will, and to see that the League constitution is drafted in terms so plain that there can be no misunderstanding as to their meaning.

5. The good will and kindly feeling of the great mass of American people for the British, the French, and the other allies, may be taken for granted.

6. There is a rapidly growing disposition to regard the League project as a non-partisan issue, and to consider it without reference to President Wilson's part in drafting it.

7. Republicans Favor League.

It is an interesting fact that the League program is receiving a large measure of its most intelligent support from Republican and Independent Republican newspapers. The St. Louis Globe-Democrat, for example, one of the most regular of old-line party papers is strongly behind the League. The Chicago Daily News, which supported Judge Hughes for the presidency in 1916, is pro-League. The Indianapolis News, an influential conservative newspaper, advocates the adoption of the League program, with the best of the Lodge amendments. So do the Philadelphia Inquirer, a Republican newspaper, and the Philadelphia Public Ledger, one of the foremost opponents of sane and substantial American thought.

Mr. Jeter F. Lawson, publisher of the Chicago Daily News, said: "The League is coming, and we are supporting it. The President was wrong in his treatment of the Senate, and the Senators cannot be blamed for presenting his method. Senator Lodge's suggestions must be considered."

This is the opinion of Mr. Richard Smith, editor of the Indianapolis News: "The League is in popular favor, because it aims to end war. The people are sick of war, and this plan is favored by their sentiment. How can you argue against a popular emotion? It cannot be done. We are disposed to give the highest credit to Senator Lodge, Knox and others like them for all of their suggestions as to changes and amendments, but we do not countenance the opposition of Senators and others who are against the war, and who obstructed the government in carrying on the war."

Where Line Is Drawn. There is a marked difference in the popular attitude toward Senators Lodge and Knox on the one hand, and Senators Reed, Borah and Poinsett on the other. There is little sympathy for the latter group. An editorial paragraph in a Detroit paper sums up the sentiment thus: "Senator Borah has started out to stump the country against the league of nations. Senator Borah is worth seeing."

The St. Louis Times, a Republican paper and the only newspaper in St. Louis to oppose the League, printed a day or two ago two columns of interviews with thirty-eight citizens. Thirty favored the League, and eight opposed it. About half of the thirty said that anything was good enough for them. The other half advocated the League constitution and amendments.

The business and professional men of a small Ohio city gathered at their club to hear the League plan explained by an expert, who expressed no personal view. After his talk, a vote was taken. It favored the League by a ratio of seven to one. Nearly all the men present were Republicans.

Milady's Newest Sunshade Is Gorgeous, With Batik Border

Oh, for a hot blazing sun, so that one might carry a gorgeous parasol like this. Parasols had quite a vogue all of the winter resorts and they are such a charming and useful addition to a summer wardrobe, that there is no doubt-but what they will be popular at the summer beaches during the coming season.

Batik work, which is the latest fashioning from Greenish village to be snapped up by fashion dictators, has been used on the border of this parasol, and thus it is raised from the class of ordinary sunshades to a plane far above. It makes it rather costly to be sure, but it is well worth the price just to own a bit of batik. The center of the parasol is of vivid green, silk with a batik border which seems to include every tone in an evening sunset. Shimmering greens, purples and blues predominate with odd, futuristic designs here and there in orange and red shades, and then as if not satisfied with that eight silky tassels are added, giving a rather oriental effect. The frame is made of wood and although of very large proportions, the weight seems like nothing.

Auto load of revolutionists dashing through street celebrating formation of republic and crowds listening to President Karolyi, at right, on steps.

The fact that no word has been received recently concerning any trouble in the newly formed republic of Hungary would indicate that the new nation is working out its future satisfactorily to most of the people. The pictures above, which have just arrived in the United States, were taken during the formation of the republic. The lower photo shows the revolutionists, in their delight over the overthrow of the old-monarchical regime, commandeered autos and every other kind of vehicle to celebrate the coming of democracy.

FAIRBANKS-MORSE CONCERT BAND TO PLAY HERE SUNDAY

The famous Fairbanks-Morse Athletic Concert Band of 45 pieces will put on a popular concert Sunday afternoon March 23rd at the First Congregational church in Janesville.

This band has been playing to packed houses at their monthly concerts in Beloit this winter, and many Janesville music lovers have been regular attendants, and by request of many people of Janesville the band will come here for several popular concerts, the first to be held on March 23rd.

The F. M. A. Band has grown into prominence in the musical world in the last few years, having carefully and judiciously built up their organization by selections of the best musical talent that could be procured from all parts of the country, and from some of the best musical organizations in the United States, and this season finds their organization as good as any and better than most of the bands that are now on the road.

Music lovers are due to a treat in the coming event and lucky to have a concert band of this type so close at hand, as a nominal charge will suffice to cover the expense making the concerts popular.

We hope this concert will be well patronized to insure the Beloit band reappearing here several times before the season ends.

Know Only Two Seasons. There are but two seasons—the wet and the dry—at the equator in Africa. The former (summer) lasts eight months, with the thermometer averaging from 110 to 125 degrees Fahrenheit. During the dry or "cold" season of four months the thermometer stands at about 70 degrees. It is then that the natives, who have been hived in their bamboo huts so long by the rain, desert their towns and set out for the forests and jungles.

Victim of German "Kamerad" Trick Has Scar and Gun As Souvenirs

"He's faking," warned the Y.M.C.A. man's companion as they approached a supposedly wounded German officer. The "Y" man had gone over the top with the boys and was serving as a stretcher bearer, so he kept on toward the German. He was within a few feet of him when the officer, who had his hands above his head in regular surrender fashion, made a sudden motion with the right hand, there was an explosion, and a bullet tore through the American's arm.

The victim of this bit of German "strategy" is Alexander P. Watson, of Knoxville, Tenn., who has just returned from France. The "Kamerad" gun, which he has brought home as a souvenir, is so small that it can be concealed in the palm of the hand. The short muzzle is entirely hidden by the fingers. The weapon is also fitted with a stock so built that it fits into the curve of the hand as it is held above one's head, and the long trigger is worked with the little finger.

In "surrendering," the wielder of this treacherous mechanism holds up his left hand with the palm forward in the usual fashion, but the right, holding the gun, is extended above the head with the palm turned in, concealing the pistol. When the victim is close enough, a twist of the wrist is enough to do the work.

There was no resistance on the part of the German when Watson finally got this souvenir. A dough boy in a "mopping-up" party at work nearby saw the attack on the "Y" man. The soldier's action, which was instantaneous, made it unnecessary for the stretcher bearer to pick up this particular "wounded" man.

Keep Up the "Friend Supply." The success of every life, as well as its happiness, depends very largely on its friendships. Take time to make friends. Take time to keep them. There are a great many unnecessary things which can be omitted from our daily activities and no harm done, but for the making and for the keeping of our friendships in repair one must find time, whatever else is neglected.

Winter Reading. Books of natural history make the most cheerful winter reading. I read in Audubon with a thrill of delight, when the snow covers the ground, of the magnolia, and the Florida keys, and their warm sea breezes; of the fence rail, and the cotton tree, and the migrations of the rice bird; of the breaking up of winter in Labrador, and the melting of the snow on the forks of the Missouri.—Thoreau.

WHAT ROUMANIA ASKS AT PEACE TABLE

The shaded portions of the map show the provinces which the Roumanians hope to incorporate into a greater Rumania. They are a strip of land between the Black Sea and the Danube, which was a part of Hungary. The Roumanians claim that these lands are populated chiefly by people of Roumanian descent, however, has put in a claim for the southern half of the province, claiming that this part of the province is peopled mainly by Serbs.

Perfect Protection Against Germ Disease Epidemics

Make No Mistake. Be Careful in the Selection of Your Germicidal Antiseptic.

There is Death to Mankind in the Use of Commonly Known Antiseptics. These Are Poisons.

There is danger of disease through misplaced confidence in the "near antiseptics" the people who use them are depending upon a broken reed. It is surely a cruel irony that a pretended germicide to be used in guarding the lives of children against the fury of virulent disease germs.

Benetol

Greater by Comparison. It Has No Competitor. There Is No Substitute.

The health departments of our leading cities are advising the people to use an antiseptic for gargling the throat to remove disease germs which are flying through the air causing the present epidemics of grippe, colds, pneumonia, measles, scarlet fever, etc. None of these doctors advise the proper antiseptic, one that has germicidal power. They leave the selection of such to the general public, and there is lies the danger.

Hence Make No Mistake in the Choice of Your Antiseptics

Use Benetol as directed for a throat gargle and a nasal douche. Drink it several times daily because it is the only powerful non-poisonous germicide. It is so strong that it may be so strong in any strength necessary to kill disease germs. It does not injure the delicate tissues of the throat, nose, or stomach or intestines. It is as harmless as ordinary salt.

Benetol is Simple to Use

Ten to twenty drops in a glass of hot water may be drunk three to five times daily. It may be used as a throat gargle, mouth wash, nasal douche, and for washing infected eyes and diseased skin. It is also the best healing agent for Poison Ivy, Burns, cuts, wounds, or bruises. Index to simple directions will be found on back page of booklet packed with every red carton.

Becomes Greater By Comparison

The medicinal value of Benetol as a germicidal antiseptic is in greater evidence when compared with such as carbolic acid, bichloride of mercury, iodine, etc., or with the weakly germicidal "antiseptics" which claim germicidal power, such as peroxide and many other advertised mouth washes. The Benetol antiseptic must be so highly diluted that their germicidal power is reduced to a very small fraction, like an army of ten thousand men, of which nine thousand nine hundred are tied up. This accounts for many of the prevalent diseases being caused by the full germ-killing power of the poisonous agents cannot be used. And again the weaker antiseptics, which may be used in full power or in high percentages, have practically no germ-killing value. But with Benetol the special character of the antiseptic use of full strength when necessary, hence Benetol's stupendous, available germ killing activity.

Protect Your Home Against Prevalent Epidemic Germ Diseases

Secure a 50c bottle of Benetol at once and use it as directed. You will find it more effective in actual home use for any purpose than the old poisons or "near antiseptics" and it is the danger of losing a member of the family accidentally because Benetol protects against infection and also against accidental death from poison. Benetol prevents sickness and saves lives every day. All our claims for Benetol are very easily proven. Your first test is simple proof. Sold in red cartons, good drug-gists. The Benetol Co., Chicago, Ill.

To Keep Young.

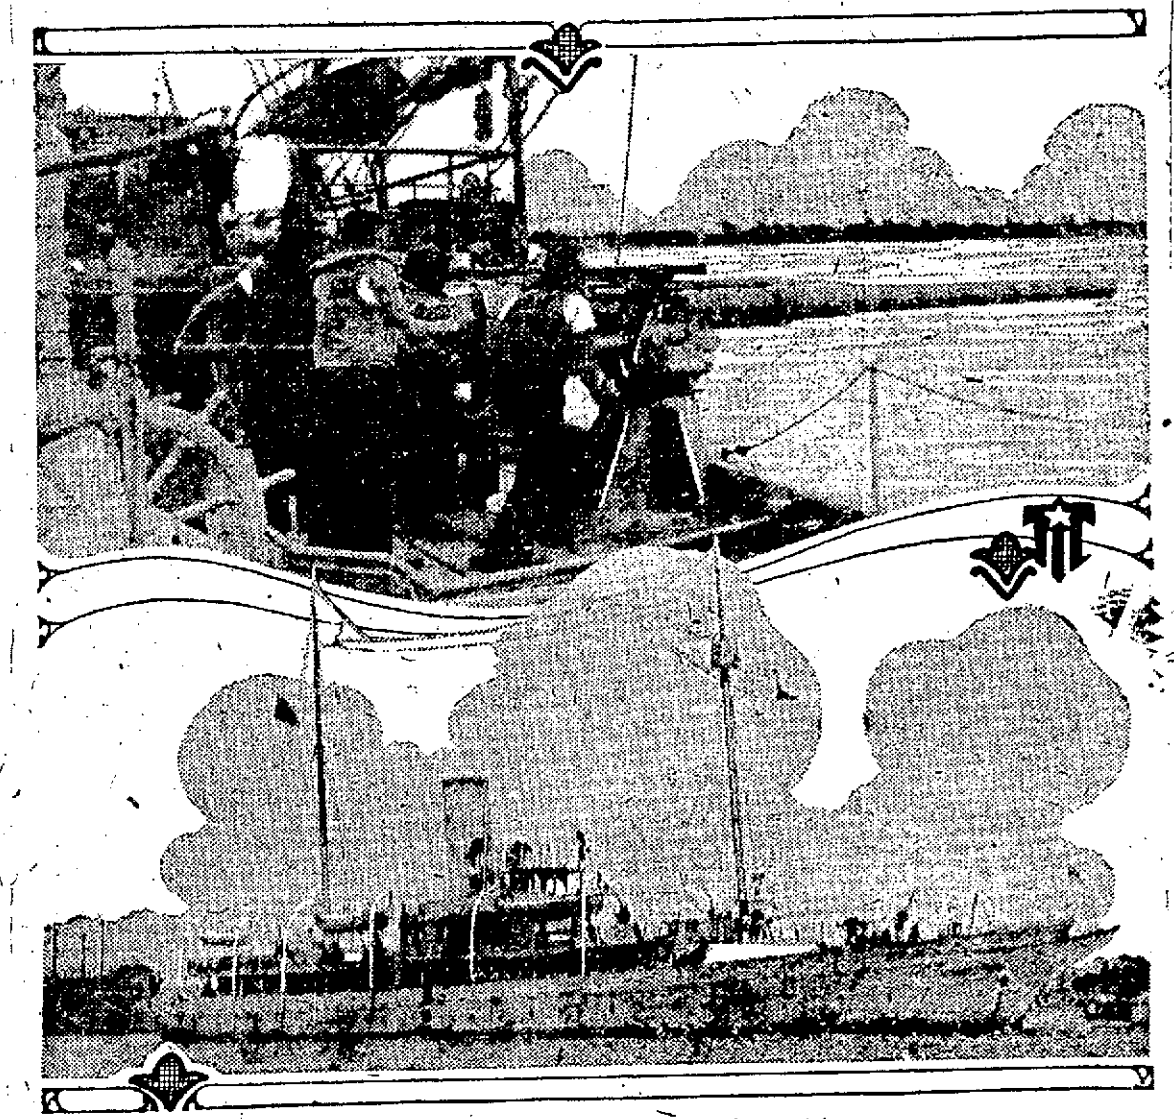

The great enemy of youthfulness is the drying-up process, and this is why we should not only keep as much as possible with the young but should enter into their joys, their plays, with zest and enthusiasm. We should romp and play with them, interest ourselves in the things that delight them, instead of pushing children away from us and restraining them all the time, regarding them as a nuisance and a bore. Children were given us to keep us youthful, to keep our sympathies fresh.—Exchange.

$10,000,000 A YEAR BRITISH RAILWAY MEN'S DEMANDS

(By Associated Press.)

London, March 21.—A detailed official statement shows the average earnings of railwaymen in 1917 were 28 shillings, six pence per week and that they were increased during the war by 33 shillings. An eight-hour day was also granted.

The increased earnings and shorter hours, it is said, added $75,000,000 to the annual cost of operating railways, to which may be added $25,000,000 due to the increased cost of materials. The statement sets forth that the men's present demands would cost $100,000,000 a year.

At a meeting of the representatives of the two unions of railwaymen with Sir Albert Stanley, president of the board of trade; Sir Robert S. Horne, minister of labor, and other government officials yesterday, concessions were offered the men as regards wages. They were offered a 48-hour week with a continuance of the present wages until the end of the current year. This concession is declared an increase in railway rates.

DAINTY CLOTHES FOR THE LITTLEST LADY OF THE HOUSE

By ELOISE.
In replenishing the wardrobes for spring, frocks for the little tots must not be forgotten. It is a joyous day when the little miss goes a shopping with mother on Saturday morning. Especially is she pleased if mother lets her pick out her best frock or Sunday hat, and then there is always a resting time when mother takes her to the tearoom for some goodies. But best of all is showing the new clothes to daddy and dressing all up just to try them on.
The two little frocks pictured are very suitable for spring and summer, too. They are both made of fine batiste. The one in the center is a plain white frock with the hem, belt, collar and cuffs made of pink batiste. The grown up pockets on the skirt will be the delight of the lucky miss who wears the little dress. The little dress on the right is of apple green batiste and will look cool and fresh. It is a simple little "Mother Hubbard" with a tucked skirt and white collar and cuffs, which are edged with lace and embroidered with daisies.

Like big sister, the little girl will want a new sweater coat of bright color for spring. The one pictured on the left is made of stone blue shetland wool with white angora collar and cuffs. It is a slip-on style with purling at the waist and cuffs. It is serviceable and pretty and can be made at home or purchased for a moderate price in the shops.

The little white kid pumps with straps are very attractive for the warmer days to come and the same style may be had in canvas, which is easier to clean and rather less expensive to buy. Any one of these things will make a little girl feel all dressed up on Easter.

Peculiar Bush Beans.
Careful tests have shown that certain kinds of bush beans which as a rule bear one good crop of early beans and then cease to produce, will, when started in flowerpots under glass, produce a fine crop much earlier than those planted in the open soil, and continue to produce beans all through the summer up until the vines are cut by frost in autumn. It is supposed the age of the plant makes the difference, as the one started under glass is older before it bears any beans at all.

Chinese Seclusion.
So successfully has China succeeded in secluding herself from the rest of the world that there are places within her borders where Christian white men have never set foot even to this day. How very remarkable this fact is will be realized when one considers that the Christian white man has been the most restless wanderer known to history.

Soldering Aluminum.
French manufacturers are the most successful in use of aluminum solder. They use it in proportions as follows: Zinc, 80 parts; copper, 8 parts; aluminum, 12 parts. For soldering aluminum by means of the ordinary soldering iron, 95 to 99 parts of tin are recommended to 5 to 8 parts of bismuth, which makes an ordinary soft solder.

When Angels Came to Men

By REV. L. W. GOSNELL
Assistant Dean, Moody Bible
Institute, Chicago

TEXT—There were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field. And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them; and they were sore afraid. And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying, Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will to men.—Luke 2:8, 9, 13, 14.

How amazing that angels came to men! Indeed, some are so impressed with the vastness of the physical universe and with the insignificance of man that they doubt whether God has any interest in us. But such thinkers lack a proper sense of values. Firemen will risk their lives to save a baby in a burning building, even though the wealth in the building is lost because of their attention to the child. A world of men is of more concern to God than a universe of stars. The sheep in the fields were not afraid as the shepherds were, when the angel of the Lord appeared; the shepherds had a sense of the supernatural which the sheep had not. Men may become sons of God while sheep and stars cannot; hence God cares for men especially and sends his angels to them.

The shepherds were good men. We read of them hasting to Bethlehem and of their "glorifying and praising God." It has been well said that had men would have heard only the night wind, instead of the angels' songs. Mrs. Browning speaks of some to whom every common bush is aflame with God, while others sit around picking blackberries. Once, when the voice of God spoke to Jesus, some who heard it said it thundered! Men who are not Christians miss the vision of God and no angels' song cheers them in the night of life.

The shepherds were poor men. Some tell us that the principal duty of the church toward the poor is to change their environment. But the shepherds teach us that God may come to the poor before their environment is changed. How often have Christian workers found the brightest saints in squalid tenements! We do not underestimate the value of a good environment, but the surest way to secure it is to make, first, good men.

Religion for Busy Men.
The shepherds were busy men. The angels did not appear to idlers nor to those shut up in cloisters, but to men in the fields. What a revelation of heaven's ideal of the religious life! The "glory of the Lord" which shone about the shepherds was the Shekinah which had glowed in the temple of old, seen only by the high priest and on rare occasions. But here it came to illuminate the fields where men toiled. God does not propose to take men out of their employments, but would have them serve him at their tasks. Alas, that many are so busy with their flocks they have no time to go to Bethlehem!

We are interested in the song of the angels, but would first remind ourselves of the wonder that there could be communication between these heavenly creatures and the sons of men. Paul speaks of "the tongues of men and of angels," and we cannot conceive the language of heaven. Yet on that night the angels were understood by the shepherds. Light is thrown on this fact by the reference in Ephesians 3:15 to "the whole family in heaven and earth." Just as the spectroscopic shows the stars are composed of the same elements as the earth and suggests the unity of the universe, so the family in heaven and earth is one, and there is a certain kinship between men and angels. At any rate, the "tongues of men and angels" are harmonized when Jesus is their theme!

The Song of the Angels.
The angels seem to have sung in unison, like the Levite choirs. First, one section sang, "Glory to God in the highest." Another responded, "On earth peace." Then they sang in chorus, "Good will toward men."

The coming of Jesus brought glory to God "in the highest," that is, from the highest intelligence. They knew the glory Christ had with the father and could appreciate the sacrifice involved in his stooping to be born among men. They knew the holiness of God which required a sacrifice for sin. They appreciated the love which provided a sacrifice in him who not only was made in the likeness of men but was to humble himself to the death of the cross.

The coming of Christ brought "on earth peace, good will toward men." The latter expression is the same as that used by the Father when he said of Jesus, "This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleased." By the blood of the cross such a peace has been made that God may have the same pleasure in redeemed sinners as he finds in his Son, in whom he always takes delight. Indeed, as Paul puts it, we are "accepted in the Beloved," all this comeliness being placed upon us! How wonderful!

THE INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSONS

First Quarter, Lesson XII: Joshua

Golden Text: Evil companionships corrupt good morals. 1 Corinthians XV 33.

JOSHUA'S FAREWELL MESSAGE.

(Temperance Lesson)

Joshua is one of the world's ever-living heroes. He bursts into Hebrew history as the successful commander of Israel's hosts at Rephaim. His career, henceforth, is as a star in the firmament of the Jewish nation. He was the first mortal to wear "no fault was found in him." The ex-slave from Pharaoh's brickyard had prime opportunities to have enriched himself by the partition of Canaan, but he made no claim on ground of distinguished services. He attempts no sequestering of a fat vineyard or lordly mansion. He seeks only modest portion in the barren mountains of Ephraim. Such disinterested patriotism has never been surpassed. Now, after more than half a century of service, he stands before his countrymen, by infallible tokens he knows that his departure is at hand. He will faint, after the example of Moses, his noble chief, at the thought of leaving his mortal life. He summons his powers of body, mind, and spirit, and pours them out in an historic resume, in discriminating analysis of the cause of national prosperity and an appeal to the nation to maintain the principles of national integrity. The local environment made a frame worthy of this picture, at once pathetic and sublime. The ark of the covenant, which had accompanied him for years, stood under the spreading oak, under which Jacob buried his fathers. There were Beal and Gerizim, Mountains of the Curse and the Blessing, their flinty sides graven with the prohibitions and injunctions of the law. The ark of the covenant had been brought from Shiloh to grace and give sanctity to the scene. In a scene like this stood the tribes of Israel, it is not too much to say, at least present in the person of their legal representatives. The company was alert to hear the parting words of the old hero, to whom, humbly speaking, they were indebted for their good inheritance. Joshua held up one by one the golden links in the chain of a Divine providence, which stretched from Haran beyond the Euphrates, through Canaan, Egypt, the wilderness, and thence back to Canaan. He stops pride by reminding them that their victories were achieved supernaturally—not with their swords and bows. Turning to the future, the warrior says naught of war. His speech takes on a millennial cast. Swords are already beaten into plowshares, spears into pruning hooks. He speaks of moral qualities of obedience, of holiness. He will forewarn his people of a peril. He will enjoin a duty. The Hebrews had a new fatherland, a new identity. Their fathers served other gods beyond the flood. They suffered for four hundred years the debasing influence of Egyptian polytheism. Unhappily they had allowed the dress of the gross idolatry to remain in the conquered territory. Joshua recognized the incident of the golden calf as only the interruption of the idolatrous spirit and practice which was secretly maintained. Like the king's evil, this vice seemed in the blood. The vision of the centurion was not too much dimmed to see the line of weakness. Joshua sets up a standard. Decided himself, he calls for decision on the part of the people. Once for all, let it be determined whether they will serve the Lord or the idols. Let him be served if they think the ugly little images superstitiously brought from Haran are gods; if they prefer the filthy deities of the Amorites to the Jehovah of the Hebrews, let them be served. The wonder-worker of the Red Sea, the wilderness, and Sinai—then let them turn to idols. But like a high clarion blast that has kept the air pulsing ever since, Joshua's personal appeal is heard: "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord." The place, with its hallowed associations; the speaker, venerable and venerated; the address, at once modest and sublime, had an overwhelming effect upon the distinguished assembly. With Oriental profuseness they deprecated any forsaking of Jehovah, and protesting their determination to serve him, Joshua sifts them like wheat. He discloses the character of Jehovah, affirming his holiness, his unwillingness to accept divided affection, and the fierceness of his punitive wrath. Such a God cannot be served except with sincerity and wholeness of heart. They protest that such shall be their service. "Your consciences shall be witnesses against you," he says. "If you are unfaithful to this covenant," Joshua cried, "So let it be," answered the people. So Joshua recorded the covenant and set up a pillar as a reminder of it in the form of a pillar under the sacred terebinth. And the assembly was privileged.

THE TEACHER'S LANTERN
Joshua's influence was phenomenal. He held Israel to the Lord's service while he lived, and projected his controlling power upon the succeeding generation. We search the sacred history in vain, from the exodus to the captivity, for another generation that was so wholly faithful to Jehovah.

The secret of Joshua's influence was not so much in heroic deed or eloquent word as in his character. It was not so much what he had done or said that made him potent. It was himself, his stainless reputation, his modesty, piety, faith, constancy, heroism, and patriotism. He was in himself the best argument, the strongest appeal for fidelity to God. His character, backed up by his exhortation, is as impossible to-day as it was in Joshua's time. Jesus' dictum needs iteration, "Ye can not serve God and Mammon." If we would institute a search for idols, we would find them in the safety-deposit boxes, the spoils and span turnout, or the Worth gown. Not the rich alone or even chiefly have their idols, but the middle class and the poor as well.

Joshua has come to a state aptly summarized by Carlyle as a "must of concessions." If the Hebrews had as thoroughly purged Canaan of idolatry as they did their homes of leaven, before they came to a state of concessions, they would have saved themselves the disgrace and woes of the captivity. They did not faithfully follow the will of God in this. The idolatrous reignants were like a thorn in Israel's flesh as long as the nation existed, and was the chief cause of its downfall.

Joshua, from his moral elevation, had the Divine thought in Israel's election, an inspiring Canaan unrolled like a map before him. He consciously yielded himself choice and cunning, in the hand of Providence. There have been many such cases in later days, instruments, God for the moral culture of the nations.

THE ART OF BUILDING CHARACTER

Motto: A man is just as great as he is in the sight of God; no greater.

—FARRAR.

Building is an exact art. It calls for the plumb line, the spirit level, compass and square. Slight deviations spell disaster. Blue-print must be followed literally. So in character, it cannot be erected haphazard. Close attention must be given to every part of the building with the working model must be made. Jesus Christ is the pattern.
